

More awards and recruitment push for Keyhole Security

Keyhole Security, the company where the staff worked for free for two months to stop the firm from going bust, has just completed the refurbishment of its new showroom in Vale Road, Portslade. The company has won a key contract with the Environment Agency supplying wireless CCTV cameras to help them with surveillance.

The company, which was recently awarded Investors in People status, was also seen at IFSEC 2011 this May. IFSEC is the ideal opportunity for key decision makers to give informed decisions, compare solutions and discover the most cost-effective, innovative technologies. It's the world's leading global annual security event, uniting more than 22,000 security professionals with more than 700+ world leading companies, spread over six product areas. Keyhole is in line to turn over £1million by the end of the year, a real turnaround.

Since January this year, Keyhole Security has also recruited 5 new staff in Matthew Thomas, Richard Butcher, Karen Fraser, Karoline Pannell and Stuart Weeks. Only last week a young apprentice, Beau Montgomery Watkins (16) joined the team.
